Law School Connect, the Law School Recruiting Videoconference Network, Continues to Expand the Network

Law School Connect Adds UCLA, University of New Mexico, Lewis and Clark (Northwestern) and University of Wisconsin Law schools to its Network.

Law School Connect, a network that provides videoconferencing equipment to law schools through law firm sponsorships, announced today that it has added four law schools to its network; UCLA, University of New Mexico, Lewis and Clark (Northwestern) and University of Wisconsin. There are now 30 law schools on the network. The network's prestigious list of law firms continues to grow, including firms such as Ulmer & Berne LLP, Jenner & Block LLP, Alston & Bird LLP, and Proskauer Rose LLP.

Linda Cash, Recruitment Coordinator at Proskauer Rose commented, "The Law School Connect Program has added tremendous value to our videoconferencing system. In addition to using our system for internal meetings, we can now use it to recruit students from law schools we have not traditionally been able to reach."

Karolyn Eisenhart, Recruiting Director for Ulmer & Berne recently scheduled a videoconference with a student at member The Ohio State University Moritz Law School. "Conflicts arose for a student with a recently scheduled on-campus interview, but we were able to proceed with the interview a few days later using videoconferencing." Heidi Yurkiw, Assistant Director of Career Services at Moritz said, "Our student was very pleased with how smoothly the videoconference interview went, and we appreciate the premier support we received from the Law School Connect team."

Along with the law schools and law firms, Law School Connect membership also includes judges. Numerous State Supreme Courts, Appellate Courts and over 30 U.S. District Courts, including Bankruptcy Courts are among the membership.

Program Details

Law firms, courts, legal non-profits and law schools all join Law School Connect to set up recruiting interviews through videoconferencing.

- Law Firms, Judges, and Legal Non-Profits gain access to any of the law schools within Law School Connect over videoconference for recruiting interviews. Law firms and legal non-profits pay a membership fee, legal non-profits pay a fee or receive a sponsor, and Judges receive access for free.
- Law Schools are either sponsored through law firms or pay a membership fee. Law schools Career Services Offices have complete control over scheduling interviews, initiatives and other programs. They work directly with law firms to set up interviews. Law School Connect provides the technology infrastructure, technology support, and promotes which law schools are available to law firms.
